Personal Reference

I have worked with Mick on several projects from Coaching Pathways to educate less experienced Coaches and develop long term scouting pathways worldwide. We will continue to grow and maintain the standards of Talent Identification to educate Clubs to understand and commit to developing the Scouting network. This will ensure continual improvement and raise much needed funds through the development and sale of future players

Key skills & competencies

Coaching: Highly experienced in the day-to-day processes involved in effective coaching, including planning, preparation, implementation, and evaluation. Fully prepares players by ensuring the necessary infrastructure and coaching is in place to improve their performance and develop confidence at a young age.

Youth Development: Understands how crucial it is to provide effective coaching to young players to teach vital and fundamental skills that will support future development, identifying potential and offering the right level of support to nurture this talent.

Communication: A confident and effective communicator who can build and maintain durable relationships with players and coaches alike. Capable of giving out advice and instruction whilst remaining an approachable member of staff and is aware of how to tailor the approach to the audience.

Attitude & Influence: Demonstrates an excellent working attitude that combines honesty, reliability, and a desire to learn with an established knowledge of the rewards that come with hard work. Provides a leadership figure in the dressing room and on the training ground, through approachability, coupled with authority.

Planning & Organisation: Appreciates the need for effective organisation for a team to work and play together successfully, organising training sessions with several different drills available to meet the needs of every player

“I have known Mick since 2010 when he worked as an Academy Coach at IBV in Iceland and I was at that time the Head Coach of the 1st team. I have no doubt that he can work with players at all levels. I feel he has enthusiasm, knowledge and excellent communication skills which added to the further education on the UEFA A licence will develop him further as a coach. I am also happy to endorse Mick as a confident individual and as an excellent role model for both the players and coaches at his club”

Heimir Hallgrímsson – Former Head Coach Al Arabi (Qatar) & Iceland National Coach
